

MAIL MAIL—The plane's not all here. There wasn't room in the hangar for James Ronco's undamaged plane when a sudden hail storm struck Pueblo, Colo., recently. A foot of hail fell on the city, breaking more than 10,000 windows and causing Ronco's craft to look as if it had been through the Korean war.

TOMORROW'S NEWS TODAY—In case you've wondered why you're getting Friday battle stories from Korea in your Thursday newspaper, the answer is right here. Korea is located just four hours west of the International Date Line in the Pacific—an imaginary line where when it's Friday on the west side it's Thursday on the east. Korean time is 14 hours ahead of New York's, so Korea's Friday is more than half gone before New York's even begins. The Newschart above gives comparative times for Korea and the four U. S. time zones. If you happen to be on Daylight Saving Time, you'd better forget the whole thing.

TREACHEROUS KOREAN BATTLEGROUND—Somewhere in South Korea, American troops of the First Cavalry Division cut a hasty meal in the field before moving up to the front. Note the steep mountainside in background overlooking a narrow, dirt road. In mountainous terrain like this, guerrilla troops are able to dig in with light weapons and do heavy damage to columns of troops and armor moving down the roads. ROADSIDE REFRESHMENT—Capt. John Dillon, of Seattle, Wash., with apple in hand, Pfc. Gerald Robinson, center, of Antigo, Wis., and Sgt. Edward Jankowski, of Chelsea, Mass., come upon unexpected refreshment on their way back from the Korean front. They were offered fresh fruit by the young South Koreans at the roadside.

READS HISTORY AS HE MAKES IT—Pvt. Donald Webb of Atlanta, Ga., reads a pocket-sized "History of World War II" as his 1st Cavalry Division comrades rest. Left to right, they are Pfc. Gunnar Rodriguez of Norfolk, Va., Pfc. O. Hammer of Grant City, Mo., and Pfc. David Joseph of Jeannette, Pa.

HEAVE HO!—GIs of the First Cavalry Division lend a hand to a wrecker straining to pull an overloaded truck out of a ditch near Yongdong, South Korea. Poorly-built Korean roads make it tough going for heavy trucks and armor. (Photo by NEA-Acme staff photographer Ed Hoffman.)

CENTURIES BETWEEN THEM—An old Korean farmer and his age-old ox-drawn equipment provide a study in contrast to the modern American tank as it rolls up to the fighting front somewhere in South Korea. (Photo by NEA-Acme staff photographer Ed Hoffman.)

MERCY UNDER FIRE—The strained expressions and tense attitudes of the Marine stretcher bearers in this battle-action picture tell the story. Rescuing a wounded comrade under heavy fire, they hope to duck North Korean bullets successfully enough to get him safely into an aid station. (Photo by Stanley Tretick, NEA-Acme staff correspondent.)

SCIENTISTS MAKE THE "H" BOMB—Scientists at the Atomic Energy Commission's Argonne National Laboratories near Chicago make use of three-dimensional television in handling, by remote control, dangerous radio-active materials. Here an A.E.C. employee watches, via the TV screen, as an object almost a fifth of a mile away is handled by electronically operated arms. The Commission's eighth semi-annual report just received in Congress states that the U. S. is "now under way" in the production of a hydrogen bomb and that progress has been made toward the development of atomic engines for use in both planes and submarines.

FOUR HOT DOGS—Capt. Kenneth Houghton, San Francisco, Calif., left, and T/Sgt. John Slagle, Templeton, Pa., both of the First Marine Division, soak their aching feet in their water-filled helmets after a forced march toward the battlefield in Korea.

RAISING CAIN'S SPIRITS—When Wentz Cain of Lyons, Kan., became sick and unable to plow his farm, 12 of his neighbors hooked their tractors to plows and did the job for him. They made short work—and a pretty picture—of plowing Cain's acre for next year's crops.

causing heavy but undetermined casualties.

Even allowing for many duplications, the North Korean losses were terrific.

The Allies yielded in only one sector for a two-mile loss a dozen miles north of Taegu on the central front. But there the Reds were stopped by a flare-lit American artillery and plane attack by night.

Two Red troop and ammunition ships were reported knocked out of the war by South Korean naval units off the southern coast. Casualties were said to be heavy but were not given in numbers for the navy action.

A South Korean navy official said one Red ship was sunk and the other damaged by gunfire. A tank led column in only one sector gave up two miles a dozen miles north of Taegu on the central front. But there the Reds were stopped by a flare-lit American artillery and plane attack by night. Five Red tanks were destroyed in the action.

The back of this most immediately threatening lunge at Taegu was believed broken by the unusual teaming up of planes with big guns at close quarters. The night-flying fighter-bombers were guided to their targets by the bright glow of phosphorus shells poured among enemy troops by field artillery.

The other immediate threat appeared to be in the deep south where the Reds were building at Chinju for a new offensive aimed at Pusan, the main Allied port on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

In fighting over the weekend from tip to tip of the 120-mile long front, the Reds lost nearly 2,000 men in the south, 6,000 on the central front and the balance on the east coast line north of Pohang.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the southern front that Americans lost a key and bitterly disputed mountain position in a give-and-take battle two miles southwest of Haman to 1,500 widely changing Reds.

Fighting has raged around Haman since Saturday. The sector is defended by the U. S. 25th infantry division. It is 10 miles northwest of the south coast port of Masan, 27 airline miles west of Pusan.

Sustained air and artillery attacks halted the Red drive toward Taegu from a Communist column north of allied-recaptured Kumhwa. Two Red divisions have been identified in the push.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead on the Taegu front reported night flying U. S. warplanes guided by phosphorus shells hammered at the Reds for four hours.

The Communists gained two miles before the American 27th "Wolfhound" regiment and South Korean troops stopped them. Previously General MacArthur had reported these forces had regained all ground lost last week to the Reds moving on Taegu.

AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth on the deep south front, said that pilots reported observing "a terrific buildup" of supplies by the Reds Sixth division around Chinju. MacBeth said it was possible the Red Seventh infantry division had been rushed to reinforce the sixth for an impending stab at Pusan.

MacBeth said other pilots reported a similar buildup in the east where two South Korean divisions pushed northward of the Kigye-Pohang line in a continuing bloody offensive that cost the Reds heavily.

Pope Stresses Importance of Dogma

Vatican City, Aug. 21 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today told Catholic clergy throughout the world that the dogmas of the church must be accepted and respected.

The encyclical was issued at a moment when the question of dogma has become a subject of controversy between Catholics and Protestants. This stems from the Vatican's announcement that the pope will soon proclaim as dogma the Virgin Mary's assumption into heaven in body as well as spirit.

The announcement provoked criticism in Protestant circles, especially on the part of the Church of England, whose leaders said they saw in it the threat of a new obstacle to the movement for Christian unity.

The pope will pronounce the new dogma on Nov. 1 as a dramatic highlight to the 1950 Holy Year. He will hold a secret consistory of the college of cardinals the day before.

Princess Rose Observes 20th Birthday

Balmoral, Scotland, Aug. 21 —Princess Margaret Rose stepped blithely out of her teens today and thereby cracked a romantic legend. The younger daughter of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth celebrated her 20th birthday still a spinster.

That upset the story dating back to antiquity that any girl born in Glamis castle will marry before she is 20.

Margaret of the merry eyes was the Karens seized the central Burma city of Toungoo last year. Later they were overwhelmed by government forces. Now Seng reportedly is now with the Chinese Communists.

DOROTHY DIX Age Difference

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man, married to a beautiful and charming girl. I deceived her about my age, for I am a few months younger than she is, but by some unfortunate accident she found my birth certificate and since then she refuses to talk to me and spends the time in tears and gloom. We were so happy together until this happened. Now all is changed and we are miserable. What can I do?

G.A.G.

Answer: I think your wife must be singularly lacking in good old, hard horse sense if she is letting such an insignificant thing as a few months' difference in age wreck a happy marriage. If she had found out that you had another wife, or that you had some terrible blot upon your past, or that you were a drunkard or took dope, she might feel that you had inveigled her into marriage under false pretense and that she had caused for grief. But when your secret is nothing more serious than a birthday, it is to laugh.

Are More Important Factors

There are a thousand things more important to consider in picking out a husband or wife than his or her age. And the way a marriage turns out depends upon the congeniality and suitability and characters and manners and habits of the contracting parties, not upon which has the most candles on his or her birthday cake.

Of course, when December weds May, disaster is bound to ensue. But, leaving out a great disparity of years, it doesn't make a particle of difference whether the wife or the husband is the elder so far as the success of the marriage goes. As a matter of fact you cannot go by the calendar in judging the real age of an individual. There are men and women who are mere girls and boys at 70, and boys and girls who are senile at 17. It is our dispositions and "ways" that keep young and flexible or get wrinkled and stiff and have rheumatism in their joints.

This holds good for the man marrying the woman older than himself. If he is old for his age and she is young for hers, they meet on a common ground and age becomes negligible. Nor is there any reason why a man should not marry a woman older than himself if he is of the mother-complex type. Many such marriages are most happy, because the older woman can give the husband a love and tenderness that no young wife could.

The objection formerly made to such marriages was that women aged quicker than men did, but this is not true that women make a cult of youth and good looks. And most of them stay a perpetual 39.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What is your advice to a girl who seems to have assumed the role of fairy god-mother to her crowd? I am a good-looking girl popular with the boys but solely as a mother confessor. They confide their love affairs to me. When they have trouble with the girl friend they get me to straighten out things. I have to press-agent them to the girl's family and so forth. Of course I like to help some one in trouble but I would like to be the girl friend myself sometimes instead of the confidant about how much he loves her. The only men I seem to attract are confirmed bachelors who just want an interesting companion.

Answer: The next time a boy commences telling you how much he loves another girl just yawn in his face and tell him that other people's sentimental affairs are of no interest to you — that you have heart troubles of your own. When you become nothing but a confidante and little Miss Fixit, you put yourself out of the running.

Probably your troubles is that you are more mature and sensible than the boys and girls with whom you run. That is why they come to you for advice instead of love-making. And there is nothing you can do about that, for nothing is more absurd than a sensible girl who tries to act kittenish.

In reality, you are in luck that you attract the older men instead of the boys, because the older men are the marrying men. Nor is there any better fly with which to bait your hook than being an interesting companion. The girl who carries an entertaining line of conversation and who can keep a man interested and amused has a charm to conjure with. Once you have made a man depend on you for companionship and find everything flat without you, it is all over except sending out the wedding invitations.

Truman Given Right to Improve Plants

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—The senate wrote into its home front mobilization bill today a blank check for President Truman to make any needed improvements in government-owned war plants. Key provisions of the far-reaching measure to grid the country's economy for emergency would let the President restrict credit, allot scarce materials, and—if he decided they were needed—put on wage and price ceilings and ration consumer goods.

After days of debate, the senate met under an agreement to remain in session until it completed action on the measure. Indications were that it would run far into the night.

Polio Fatal to Young Teacher on Wedding Day

Texarkana, Aug. 21 (AP)—Infantile paralysis brought death to a young Arkansas school teacher on the day she was to have been married.

Death came to Mary Katherine Walker, 22, a teacher in the Luke-side (Hot Springs) high school, in a hospital here 20 minutes later.

Dear Miss Dix: I have given my heart to a man who still has four years of college. I believe him to be sincere and true, but when he confessed that he had loved eight other girls before me I began to lose faith in him. Do you think that after he graduates he will still be true to me?

Answer: Possible, but it is a hundred-to-one shot you are taking on a wedding ring if you are depending on him to supply it. Four years is a long test of any man's faithfulness, especially when he goes off to college. For in that time he is thrown in a new environment, with new people, new interests, new aspirations, new thoughts, and he comes out a changed man. Besides, any youth who has had eight previous sweethearts shows that he is fickle and that he has too much facility in loving.

then she had planned to marry her college sweetheart, George Wise, of Minden, La., Saturday. She was stricken Aug. 14 and brought her from her home.

Universal Training Gets Legion Backing

Little Rock, Aug. 21 (AP)—Arkansas Legionnaires were called upon today to support universal military training and organize community committees to combat wartime hoarding.

In making the plea at the annual convention of the Arkansas department of the American Legion, State Commander Lee Ward of Paragould described hoarders as "enemies" of the United States and universal military training "survival training."

Prefacing his appeals, Ward said: "An enemy just as surely as if he along with our United Nations allies, are in for a long series of little wars similar to the one in Korea. This means that we in America must necessarily make certain readjustments in our peacetime plans. Already some of our young men have paid the supreme sacrifice in battle."

Turning to hoarding, Ward said: "For the past several weeks there has been a rash of such and senseless hoarding by thoughtless and selfish citizens. There are, of course, no shortages in any necessary commodities. But, even if there were, hoarding under such circumstances would be a moral crime. A hoarder is our youth," he said. "We must were a Communist. Every Legion post should have a special anti-hoarding committee to point out the evils of hoarding and discourage its practice in each community. I urge each of you to set up such a committee at an early date."

He also called upon fellow Legionnaires for their support in the fight against hoarding. Ward said more than 2,000 participated in the basketball game this year and expressed hope that the plan could be expanded to include 10 years boys.

The little Pekinese, feeling left out of the fun, leaned out of Mrs. Muchmore's clutch and bit Roger Blesser.

SNIFFING the fresh laundered smell of my white jacket as I buttoned myself into it that first morning after my vacation was over, I was glad to be back at the store. It's only a small-town drug-store, but the Portson Pharmacy is all mine, and making money.

Walking up front through the cressets smells of the dog medicines and disinfectants at the back of the store, I knew there was no place in the world I'd rather be. If you can think of a better job for a nosy guy than that of a small-town pill roller, I'll take it.

Sure, I'm nosy. Who isn't? I'll admit I like to know what's going on. I like people—all kinds—and I like to know what makes them tick. Some folks put jig-saw puzzles together for fun; I do the same thing with talk and tattle and tall-tale actions.

I sauntered up to the rental books and found "Fears and Phobias" tucked away between a whodunit and a hot love story. A man can pick up some interesting stuff in the psychologyes written for the low brow. I never miss one. So I stood there skimming until I got my elbow jogged.

"Young man!" Mrs. Muchmore's lips were pressed together and her nose was tapping. "You, with your nose in a book and customers waiting!"

So I took my nose out. My cashier Betsy Sharpe was busy at the cash register because we have a 10 o'clock coffee rush, but I heard her giggle. Grace Muchmore is one of those busy women with her eyeglasses pinned to the northeast corner of her nose. She always made me feel like I'd held on to the church collection plate, but she's a good-hearted old girl actually. She handed me a prescription and glanced down at her Pekinese. She watched me read the veterinarian's prescription rather doubtfully.

"Doctor Doan said Ching must have the medicine at once," she told me. "I thought I'd try here first. But if you don't stock the ingredients I can call my druggist in the city."

The local vet, Doc Doan, had prescribed some ordinary vitamin pills for the pooch. I noticed then that the half-pint dog under our local Lady Bountiful's arm did look kind of peaked, even for a Pekinese, if you'll pardon the low pun.

"I can give you these, Mrs. Muchmore," I said. "What seems to be wrong with the little dog?"

I started to pat his head, but the dog lifted his lip and growled to say he wasn't keen about my bedside manner. So I put my hand in my pocket.

"Doctor Doan seemed to think he had a faulty diet," she sniffed. "But I told him the idea was simply absurd. Ching eats only especially prepared food under the supervision of myself and my maid."

A POOR little rich dog, I thought. "The tablets will be ready in a few minutes," I told Mrs. Muchmore. "Would you care to try today's special while you wait? A double super-sundae with crushed strawberries and fresh pineapple?"

"I really shouldn't," she waved. "I'm on a diet. But I have given up candy and all other sweets. I just can't give up ice cream, too. You may bring me a sundae, young man." She eased herself into a booth.

I gave the order to the soda boy, remembering something I'd read in the last batch of rental books. The writer of "So You Think You Don't Overeat" said fat people, especially women, firmly believe they have glandular trouble that makes them take on the extra tonnage. He claimed most fatties believe they don't overeat because they refuse to remember the snacks they tucked away between meals that add the extra pounds.

Eyes Focus on New York
Election

By The Associated Press
With the lineup for their state and senate tickets still up in the air, New York Democrats and Republicans pick candidates for 45 house seats in primaries tomorrow.

Most of those nominated in New York will be present house members, since only three Republicans and two Democrats face primary contests.

Wyoming and Mississippi voters will choose house nominees the same day. Wyoming will also select party candidates in a governor's race. Delaware Democrats in convention will nominate a candidate to run against Republican Representative J. Caleb Boggs.

The week, marked also by a run-off primary in Texas Saturday, to choose the Democratic nominees for two house posts and two state offices, may bring some clear indication of party choices for governor and senator in New York State and a mayoralty contest in New York City.

Senator Lehman (D-Lib-NY) is counted as a sure starter in the Democratic senatorial race. But Republicans haven't come close yet to settling on his opponent. Both parties will nominate for senate and governor at conventions Sept. 6-7.

Some Republicans are still trying to persuade Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to reverse his decision not to run again. If he sticks to it, Lt. Gov. Joseph R. Hanley is almost certain to be the GOP nominee in that race.

One of the New York house incumbents who doesn't face primary opposition is Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American Labor party. Marcantonio has said he is not going to run for mayor, in a race made necessary by the impending resignation of Mayor William O'Dwyer to accept appointment as ambassador to Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 21 (P)—What will Russia do when her North Korean satellite begins to lose the war?

Reverses for the Red Korean army will force a decision by the Soviets on whether to move openly into the Asiatic war or bide their time for another day when the stakes could be greater and the odds better.

The time for Moscow's decision apparently is coming nearer. The swift and long advance of the North Korean army has ground down to at least a temporary halt. The build-up of strength by American forces, with more help from other United Nations members in the offing, is under way. An offensive to destroy the Korean Red military force is in prospect for the months just ahead. And it is then Russia will have to decide.

She will have to weigh the possible effect on other nations with Soviet sphere of defeat for her Korean Communist state against the risks of taking a direct hand in war with the United States and United Nations.

Russia, for reasons of her own, may conclude the time to move isn't now but later when her military strength is even greater, meanwhile using the Korean situation as material for her peculiar propaganda technique.

Some officials at high level in Washington incline to the belief that Russia doesn't want to provoke a world war until later, when she is fully prepared.

The timetable they use in these guesses varies considerably—from two to five years.

The Soviets have an immense army—some estimates range around 4,000,000—which is equipped with superior tanks and excellent artillery. They have a large tactical air force for support of the ground army.

But the Russians may want more time to improve and augment weapons in the highly technical category.

Another two or three years may be needed for them to stockpile a larger number of atomic bombs. They have the beginning of a long range bomber force for delivery of the bombs, but may need considerably more long range bombardment aviation.

Two Transit Workers Die in Crash

Business Leader With Great War
Record Tells How Hadacol Has Rebuilt Him Physically

After run-down, week, after service in South Pacific
due to deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Nicotin

Mr. Donald Hedburg, who is at 1212 S. Main, is expected to return to his home in Hot Springs, Ark., this week.

Mr. Hedburg has an enviable record of combat with the U. S. Army in the South Pacific in World War II. He is very active in civic affairs. And just as he was any other man, he now wants to help his fellow citizens who like him were run-down by lack of vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Nicotin in their systems.

Here is Donald W. Hedburg's witness statement: "When I returned from service, I faced the problem of rebuilding myself physically. I was in a general run-down condition.

"In my present capacity of advertising salesman for Kansas' greatest newspaper, The Wichita Eagle, it's absolutely necessary that I have plenty of vitality—get up and go. I had real cause to worry. Nothing seemed to rebuild me constitutionally. Then a friend of mine on the national staff told me about HADACOL—he asked me to try at least five bottles. I'm on my fourth bottle and already I feel like my old self. I look forward to a day's work and go home with the children—work in the yard—till midnight!

"I had again to HADACOL, energy and vitality once again course through every fiber of my body. I feel I too, am now a mission for this great new HADACOL. Feeling Everyone is Talking About."

HADACOL gives such wonderful results because it not only supplies the missing vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Nicotin, but also contains Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness.

If you are a victim of neuritis, pain, certain stomach and nervous disturbances, constipation, insomnia or a weak, run-down condition due to such deficiencies, HADACOL will start you on the road to feeling better often within a few days. Thousands upon thousands of records of grateful men, women and children proved this to be so.

Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness.

stope in New York. Cooper barred no holds in his oratorical attack on the Soviet union.

He branded the North Korean Communists as tools of Moscow and said flatly that Russia directed "the bare faced aggression" against South Korea.

That means, Cooper asserted, that there is a grave threat of Soviet aggression elsewhere in the world. He said Western Europe, vital to the security of the United States, is in "mortal danger."

Miss Arkansas
Visits the White House

Washington, Aug. 21 (P)—Miss Mary Lois Jennings, "Miss Arkansas" of 1950, had the "most wonderful morning in all my life" today.

"I have been to the White House and was in President Truman's office and even saw the President as he was coming in."

Heard the 18-year-old girl from Hot Springs who will represent her state at the Atlantic City beauty contest Sept. 4-9.

Her host for the White House tour was Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, a native of Thornton, Ark.

Not only did Steelman take her around the White House, but he provided a White House limousine with a chauffeur to take her on a sightseeing tour of Washington.

Accompanying Miss Jennings was her chaperone, Mrs. Thomas Allen of Brinkley, Ark. They plan to leave later today for New York, where Miss Jennings will study voice and modeling prior to the Atlantic City contest. She is a lyric soprano.

Following a whirlwind tour of the city, Miss Jennings visited on Capitol Hill, had a chat with Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) in his office, and then went to the Shoreham hotel for lunch with a Fulbright aide, Norville Jones, who is a student at George Washington university.

Mrs. Allen told a reporter that Miss Jennings "seemed more interested in her date with Norville Jones than in talking with the senator."

Miss Jennings also was the guest of Steelman yesterday at a picnic of the Arkansas state society. In the evening she visited at Bolling air field and sang with an orchestra there.

Three harness horses with more than two starts wound up unbeaten at Yonkers Raceway's spring meeting—Carmel Boy, Brege On and Scottish Pence.
